Issue 20 | August 2015

MESSAGE FROM THE MANAGING DIRECTOR

The past few months have been extremely busy with Food Innovation Australia transitioning to the Growth Centres Initiative and recruiting additional team members. We are also busy preparing programmes for the coming year, which we will be announcing over the coming months, including the plans for developing a competitiveness plan for the food and agribusiness industry.

I am also delighted, on behalf of the team and industry, to congratulate our Chairman, Peter Schutz, for receiving the 2015 AIFST Keith Farrer Award of Merit. Peter has been recognised for his outstanding achievements within food science and technology across education, research, industry and government, as well as furthering the aims and objectives of the Australian Institute of Food, Science and Technology.

This edition of our news bulletin also features our new Board and you will see from their biographies that their knowledge and experience of the food and agribusiness industry puts FIAL in an excellent position to achieve many great things for the sector. Next month Peter will be back from his much earned break in Europe and will be contacting many of our key stakeholders about aligning initiatives for the country. We also will introduce our new team members who will have settled into their new role and already commenced working with you on joint and collaborative initiatives for the sector.

FOOD AND AGRIBUSINESS GROWTH CENTRE BOARD

PETER SCHUTZ

Peter Schutz is a highly regarded food industry advisor, chairman and director with an extraordinary portfolio of experience in food and agriculture in Australia.

Peter is the inaugural Chairman of the Food and Agribusiness Growth Centre and Food Innovation Australia Limited (FIAL), which is a national food and agribusiness hub that drives innovation and market initiatives for the industry.

Peter is looking forward to the challenge of building a resilient, cohesive and progressive food and agribusiness industry using skills he's gained from a career in senior management roles in operations, sales, marketing, technical services and compliance, innovation and technology transfer, sustainability and environmental management.

His active involvement in developing food science and technology in Australia includes board and advisory roles with the Grains and Legumes Nutrition Council, the Tasmanian Institute of Agriculture, the Australian Institute of Food Science and Technology and CSIRO's Food Futures Flagship.

Peter spent 10 years as the CEO of George Weston Technologies (George Weston Foods), where he was awarded the AIFST Food Industry Innovation Award in 2003 and the Keith Farrer Award of Merit in 2015.

DR MIRJANA PRICA

Mirjana Prica is an experienced business and strategy leader in food and agribusiness, with a passion for connecting ideas and devising solutions to deliver maximum benefit.

She is currently Managing Director of Food Innovation Australia Limited (FIAL), a national food and agribusiness hub that has brought together over 2000 stakeholders and 3000 organisations to drive innovation and market initiatives for Australia. In this role Mirjana was instrumental in delivering strategies and plans that assisted in the formation of the Food and Agribusiness Growth Centre.

Mirjana has more than 20 years experience as an R&D project manager in food, agribusiness, and materials. A key role was in business development and technology transfer for George Weston Foods (GWF), part of the Associated British Foods Group. She helped establish a global feed ingredients business for the group and managed the GWF's analytical testing business, servicing both internal and external food, agricultural and animal feed customers.

Mirjana is a business-science post-graduate from the University of Melbourne and has worked as a senior research scientist and lecturer at Keele University in the UK. She also spent part of her career as a scientist at Food Science Australia (CSIRO).

DR MICHELE ALLAN

Michele Allan is a food industry and agribusiness specialist who has held senior executive and director positions in the food and education sectors, and has an academic background in biomedical science, management and law.

She is the current Chair of the Board of Meat and Livestock Australia, Charles Sturt University, Apple and Pear Australia Limited and Grains & Legumes Nutrition Council (formerly Go Grains Health & Nutrition). Her current board positions include Innovation Australia, CRC Advisory Committee, Hearing Cooperative Research Centre and Grains Growers Limited.

In 2013-14 she chaired the Wheat Industry Advisory Taskforce for the Federal Minister for Agriculture, The Hon Barnaby Joyce. She also chaired the Tasmanian Fruit and Vegetable Taskforce appointed by the Federal Government.

Michele's prior non-executive director roles include Patties Foods Limited, the Dairy Research & Development Corporation (now part of Dairy Australia),

CallaghanInnovation, Tasmanian Irrigation, William Angliss Institute, Forest and Wood Products Australia, Food Standards Australia and New Zealand, RuralCo Holdings, Birchip Cropping Group and the Grape and Wine Research Development Corporation.

Michele holds a Bachelor of Applied Science from the University of Technology Sydney, a Master of Management (Technology) from the University of Melbourne, a Doctor of Business Administration from Royal Melbourne Institute of Technology and a Master of Commercial Law from Deakin University.

JANE BENNETT

Jane Bennett is currently a non-executive director of the Australian Farm Institute, the CSIRO, Nuffield Australia, the Australian Broadcasting Corporation and Tasmanian Ports Corporation and the Van Diemen's Land Company, Australia's largest dairy farming business.

Jane is immediate past Chair of the Food Industry Advisory Council in Tasmania and has worked in the cheese industry in the UK and Australia for more than 20 years, including a decade as Managing Director of Ashgrove Cheese, a family owned business in Tasmania.

In 2010 Jane was the Tasmanian Telstra Business Woman of the Year and in 2011 won the Australian Institute of Company Directors Gold Medal (Tasmanian Division). In 1997 Jane was named the ABC Radio Australian Rural Woman of the Year.

She was awarded a Nuffield Farming Scholarship in 2008 to study the role of regionality in the marketing and branding of food, which involved four months of travel and research across North America, Asia and Europe.

TERRY O'BRIEN

Terry O'Brien is Chairman of the Australian Food and Grocery Council and has represented the food industry on the Federal Government's Food Processors Industry Steering Group, the National Food Policy Working Group and the National Food Industry Strategy Group.

Terry has been Managing Director of Simplot Australia since 2001 and is a member of the global senior leadership team of its parent company, the US-based multinational food and agribusiness, the JR Simplot Company.

Prior to his appointment as MD of Simplot Australia, Terry was the company's Deputy Managing Director

ENTERPRISE SOLUTION CENTRE

The Enterprise Solution Centre (ESC) program, previously known as the SME Solution Centre, continues to be well supported, with 12 submissions received in the latest round, which closed in July. Three companies were successful in securing funding for projects, which will be completed by December 31st 2015. The projects cover cheese heating scale up, tropical juice flavour extraction and stabilizing, and product reformulation to remove allergens.

The ESC has been supported by CSIRO who have contributed funding to the program for the 2015-16 financial year. We are currently in discussions with other partners to add their financial support to the program and enable a greater number of companies to benefit from collaborative research that gives an opportunity to reach expanded markets.
